

The Next Era in Microfinance Commercial, Charitable, or a Third Way?

Rick Beckett, Global Partnerships President & CEO

Tuesday, September 22, 2009, 7:00-8:30pm

Doors open at 6:30pm

Twenty-five years after microfinance was pioneered in Bangladesh and India, the key question about microfinance is no longer “Does it work?” but “How do we have the most impact?” Join Global Partnerships President & CEO Rick Beckett for a wide-ranging discussion of microfinance’s evolution from its charity-driven roots to an industry that touches more than 150 million people worldwide; the new era it’s entering; and the defining challenge it faces today.

Frye Art Museum Auditorium

704 Terry Avenue | Seattle, Washington

Please pre-register at globalpartnerships.org/events

Space is limited.

$5 donation requested at the door

For more information, contact info@globalpartnerships.org

Sponsored by:

Global Partnerships expands opportunity for people living in poverty by supporting the growth of microfinance in Latin America, as well as other sustainable solutions.

SeaMo’s mission is to connect the microfinance community through events, online services and opportunities for collaboration.